Editor's note

Recently, I've had farms for rent next to my house, and now one year has passed. There is a common area everyone uses, and we planted sweet potatoes and onions last year.
We bring vegetables which we harvested several times a year and meats, and open barbecue enjoying communication with members of the farm at "Azumaya" next to there.
Freshly picked vegetables are fresh and very tasty. Now, we've planted onions and they've been growing steadily. We're planning to plant corns at free space, so we're looking forward to harvesting them.
